But however that may be, we are sure that with greater 'attractions at our park the visitors there vacant. Of these the most prominent are would be doubled in number in a short

We guess it will be said at once that the appropriations for the New Reservoir Park have always been too small. And that may be true, but the trifling sum of has been accused of divers and sundry $100 would furnish a number of rwings wrong doings. Mr. Allen's record is also for the children, and also provide a wen of water on the north side of the loke, where it is much needed. Surely the city of Richmond cannot plead that it is too poor to make such an expenditure as that! By spending such a triffing sum each year, the city might soon make the park vastly more attractive for the masses than it is riow. Few cool spots are to be found around or about the lake, and, in our orinion, the park will never do the great public service it is capable of doing until the street cars run to the New pumphouse. There, by the river's side, one may be refreshed by the sound of falling waters; there one may feel the breezes which follow the river valley; there is to be found picturesque scenery, and there swimming-pools may be easily constructed. And there is all the more reason that the street cars should run down there, because the tracks may be extended with little or no damage to the carriage drives.

Thus thousands of our people, many of whom have never seen the New pumphouse and its lovely surroundings, would be induced to go to the park. Thus the new park would become a popular resort in summer, and thus it would have vate and aid in educating the young of plenty of friends and advocates. Then, when an appropriation was needed, say, to dig a well, or to put up a few swings for the children, everybody would be willing to have the money voted.

The truth is that all the natural pic uresqueness there is about the Reservoir Park is down by the river's side; a part of the grounds not now much visited, except by those who go there in car-rieges or on bicycles. The resolution introduced in the Com men Council by Mr. Pollock charges the mittee on Grounds to inquire and report how our parks may be made more attractive, and we trust the committee will enter heartily into the scheme pro-

In time we hope to see a "Zoo" in the New Reservoir Park. We are satisfied that if the city will do its part the animals may be ob-

The late Mr. Gibbes, of Charleston, S

"It was a happy thought on Mr. Gibbes' part to include a music half of a control of a control of music in his plan for the building. It might be difficult to raise $60,000 in the city, by contributions, for the purposes of a school of painting. It should not be difficult to raise that sum, or so much of it as the trustees may deem no

the liberty-loving Filipinos. The town of Port Richmond, N. Y., has a mystery, and while it is neither so weird nor so startling as that of Jack the Ripper, it is, in its way quite an annoypoison with meat. In fact, a piece of beef containing parts of the button was found in one dog's stomach. There is much apprehension lest some of the citionly dogs appear to have gotten it. No one understands the motive for the crusury opened the bids on the New York custom-house property, of which there were three. He awarded the property to the National City Bank, of New York, on its bid of $3,265,000, this being the highest proposal. There were two other bidsviz., those of the New York Realty, Bond, Exchange and Trust Company, at $3,075,-000, and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, at $3,050,000.

The New York Tribune says that in purchasing the building and site of the custom-house it is believed the directors of the City Bank are following out a policy they laid down for themselves when in May 1897, they bought out the Third National Bank of that city. Their purpose in carrying out that transaction, it was understood, was to extend the scope, influence, and potentiality of the bank until it stood supreme in the financial world. In support of this belief, a remark made by A. G. Leomis, the vicepresident of the bank, is significant. He was asked if he did not think the customhouse rather a large place for a banking business, and he replied: "The Bank of England occupies a pretty large building."

The Spotsylvania Park.

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

The national park which it is proposed to establish in Spotsylvania county, Va., will embrace battle-fields where the Ferical armies were commanded by Burnside. Hooker, and Grant. It may be inexpedient at this late day, but it will nevertheless occur to the reader that this rives two generals who lost to one that won battles in that region. There is said a be little change in the scenery, and the earthworks of the two sides can be seen running for miles in nearly parallel lines. The State of Virginia is reported to be willing to transfer the land to the United States, and a park there would be quite as interesting as any of those al-ready provided as memorials of the great
